Key Facts & InformationHISTORICAL BACKGROUND1600s, the British began to colonize the New World and established settlements, the first in Jamestown, Virginia. The thirteen colonies were founded under the British crown. On October 1, 1760, George III of England ascended the throne. In 1764, the British Parliament began imposing taxes on the colonists to compensate for the losses of the Franco-Indian War. The Sugar Act was implemented, which raised taxes on British goods imported into the colonies, including sugar, wine, coffee, dye and cloth. After a few months, the Stamp Act was adopted, which required taxes on all printed goods produced and used in the thirteen colonies. It included newspapers, playing cards, legal and commercial documents and books. In 1767, the Townshend Acts levied additional taxes on tea, glass, paper, lead and painted colors. The following year, the forced acts, also known as the intolerable laws, were imposed on the thirteen colonies. As a result, the colonists felt that the laws violated their rights, same as with the first executive order of the Stamp Act.On March 5, 1770, a group of colonists had a meeting with British Private Thomas Preston outside the Custom House on King Street in Boston, which resulted in 5 deaths of the colonists. The event became known as the Boston Massacre.Angered by the New Treasure, colonists in Boston protested against the British by boarding three anchored merchant ships and throwing cargo of tea overboard into the sea on December 16, 1773. This event became known as the Boston Tea Party.In response to the growing dissatisfaction with British rule, Representatives from all colonies except Georgia met in Philadelphia during the first Continental Congress held between September 5 and October 26, 1774.It was followed by the Second Continental Congress on May 10, 1775 led by John Hancock.On April 19, 1775, the U.S. War of Independence officially began with the Battle of Lexington and Concord.The DOCUMENT ABOUTCOS was frustrated with King George and Britain. The men of the Second Continental Congress wanted to inform the king about how people felt and what they wanted done. Five men were chosen to write a letter to King George. Four of the men were from the northern colonies. They were John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Robert Livingston and Roger Sherman. A man was from the southern colony of Virginia. This man was Thomas Jefferson. Thomas Jefferson was asked to write the actual letter because he was such a good writer. The Declaration of Independence contained three important points that congressional representatives of the thirteen colonies wanted King George to know. First, the documents told the king what they thought made good government. Secondly, it described what rules and taxes the representatives considered to be unfair. The last declaration included by the representatives was to declare the colonies free and independent of Britain.Essentially, the Declaration of Independence declared war on King George and Great Britain.The Declaration of Independence was signed by the Congress of the thirteen colonies on 4 May, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness. After the letter was completed on July 4th, the Second Continental Congress made copies and distributed it to the people. The most famous version of the declaration, a signed copy that is usually considered the Declaration of Independence, is on display at the National Archives in Washington, D.C.Under the word citizens there is a stain on the Declaration of Independence. Historians have always wondered what was being smeared. Special imaging technology has given us a look under the word. Jefferson made a big mistake and accidentally wrote the word topics instead of citizens. The original declaration of independence was not well looked after. Congress would roll it up and carry it with them wherever they met. It suffered a lot of wear and tear. Finally come to rest under bulletproof glass in a titanium case. The case has argon gas inside, which prevents it from breaking down. The Declaration of Independence was written about parchment. Parchment is animal skin, which is very thin and treated. Iron bile ink was used to write on parchment, which is made by combining fermented oak marble bile with ferrous sulfate. Fifty-six men signed the Declaration of Independence. The youngest signatory to the Declaration of Independence was Edward Rutledge. He was 26. The only person to take his oath by signing the document was Richard Stockton. John Hancock was president of Congress at the time. His signature is the first and largest on the declaration. It is rumored that he signed it big and bold because he wanted King George to be able to read it without his glasses.
